WEATHER AND CROPS.

The Present Outlook is Very Far From Promising.

The past week has shown a continuance of the unfavorable weather conditions which prevailed during the latter half of the preceding one. The temperature was much below the normal throughout the week, and on the morning of the 28th approached dangerously near the frost point in many parts of the state. The cloudy weather of the first four days reduced the amount of sunshine to less than the normal amount. The rainfall was less than the average in the greater portion of the state, but was generally and uniformly distributed. The general effect of these conditions was unfavorable to all crops. The growth of all vegetation was retarded and the progress of cultivation and other farm work delayed.

Reports regarding the damage from the snow of last week are somewhat conflicting, but it is apparent that much injury to crops has resulted in some sections. The snow was heaviest near the mountains in the Eastern parts of the state. and it is from these sections that the majority of complaints come. Generally speaking the damage is greater than it was at first supposed to be.

Wheat has made no progress during the week, but except in sections where snow fell it is still in good condition. In many localities in the Eastern sections of the state it is reported to be seriously injured, the stalks being badly weighted down and broken by the snow. In other sections it is slowly recovering, but the promising prospects for a fine crop of two weeks ago are considerably lessened. extent of wheat.

The condition of corn, while generally reported to be poor, is not discouraging, and with favorable weather it will soon recover from the effects of the cold. That which was above ground was and unhealthy. Cutworms are playing havoc with it in many localities and appear to have increased in numbers very largely since last report.

Considerable progress was made during tions of the state, where about half the crops has been transplanted. The plants are doing fairly well except in the section last of the scarcity of plants and of dam age from cutworms. Oats are heading out low and the prospects for a crop are poor. Hemp still shows the effects of the snow, but is slowly recovering, though it has been necessary to plow over some fields and resow them

The tenderer varieties of garden pro-Judge Wadsworth also gave notice that ducts suffered very severely from the and melons were killed. Strawberries are very small and ripening slowly and will be less than an average crop. Reports of serious damage to fruit trees from the snow are still being received.

We are proud to say they are appreciated. It has always been our rule to do what we advertise. Some of the Suits we are selling at from $8 50 to Glasses fitted by Dr. Julius King's system $12 look so good for the astonishingly low price that once in a while some one will ask: "Will they wear?" Will they? Yes, as well as if you paid $25 for tem at P. J. Murphy's the Jewler and Op the Suit elsewhere. We have in the past few days been frequently asked, verbally as well as by letters in our mail, how long this cut sale will last with us. Doubtless some of these inquiries are from those who just now do not have the ready cash (remember only spot cash buys at these prices) and some from those who have not had opportunity to come to town. This is our answer:
